

Mr Jarvis – Assistant Head Teacher

I grew up locally in Leytonstone and have lived in East London my whole life with exception of the three years I spent at the University of Hertfordshire, where I studied Music Technology and Sound Engineering. During my course I ran small group workshops for children and found this hugely rewarding. Having completed my degree and having found I enjoyed working with young people and children I decided to complete a range of placements to gain more experience within a primary school. I decided teaching was for me.

I completed a PGCE at the University of Greenwich and on completion of my course was offered a job at Maryland Primary School starting in September 2008 and have been here ever since.

I have taught in Year 5 and am currently teaching Year 6. I have been a member of the senior leadership team at Maryland since 2012. My present responsibilities include KS2 phase leader, computing, AVA, website management and joint responsibility for assessment with Mrs. Cooper, among other things. As part of the senior leadership team I also play a role within strategic school planning, school improvement and development to ensure Maryland continues to improve. I also serve on the school's governing body and have done so since 2010.

During my time at Maryland I have also had many other responsibilities including Science, History, Geography and Creative Curriculum among others.

I have a keen interest in ensuring all pupils are able to achieve to the very best of their ability as well as closing the gap. I also have a National Professional Qualification in Senior Leadership (NPQSL), completed in April 2014.
